

Made in the USA: This is intended not out of a sense of patriotism, but rather it is important in that the headquarters of Vibe For Health is located just 10 miles away from the manufacturing center. This gives us much greater quality control over our product, and also allows us to work closely with the manufacturers when designing new improvements or incorporating new research to enhance the effectiveness of the Vibe. In the unlikely event that something on the Vibe breaks, we can also guarantee much faster turnaround time with repairs due to the fact that the manufacturing center is located in the U.S.

Solid construction: The Vibe is made of solid steel, bolts, & welds. It is quality-tested up to 800 lbs, has a 30-day Satisfaction Guarantee, a 1-year unlimited warranty on all parts & components, and a 3-year warranty on the motor. The motor is an industrial design that is self-cooled, requires no maintenance, and is engineered to operate continuously for three years without ever being shut off.

Invented by a doctor: The Vibe was invented by a Doctor of Chiropractic with 35 years of experience in spinal biomechanics (read his biography here). As a doctor, he created this product to better help his patients, and has never received a single penny from sales of the Vibe.

Most buyers are doctors: The majority of our Vibes are sold to healthcare professionals. When a doctor buys a product to use in her clinic, her reputation with her patients hinges upon the results it achieves, and her license depends upon the safety of the product & the treatment it provides. The extreme safety & effectiveness of the Vibe has led to so many patients of these doctors wanting to purchase a Vibe for use at home that we have developed a resource for them to do so; you don't see many advertisements for the Vibe because our customers are mostly word-of-mouth referrals from patients & doctors impressed with the results they personally experienced.

The name: Why could this be important? Consider for a second, if you invented a vibrating platform, wouldn't "The Vibe" be the most natural name & trademark for your product? Vibe For Health has been a business entity since 1981 (although the name of the company was changed when we began selling vibrational therapy products in 2001), and we were the first company to trademark the "Vibe." A great deal of research & foresight has gone into the development of the Vibe, and this process began before the current media buzz about WBV therapy.

The research: If you are interested in purchasing a WBV platform, there are numerous companies from which you can obtain one. In fact, you can access a list of them here. It's a measure of our confidence in our product that we encourage you to evaluate other WBV companies, and compare their research & information to ours. Additionally, research projects on the Vibe specifically are underway to demonstrate the improvements in bone density, balance & posture, joint flexibility, & muscle strength that result from daily use of this product. More advanced studies to measure the effect of the Vibe upon hormone levels, metabolic effects, and blood & lymph circulation are planned to follow. Due to the fact that research have demonstrated that different forms of WBV can have positive or negative effects on the body, Vibe For Health is committed on conducting research specifically on the Vibe.
